Voter turnout slim in Hancock

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Voter turnout in Hancock County was light Tuesday, following a trend of slim voter interest across the state in Republican and Democratic primary.

In the Democratic race to senate, Cliff Finch unofficially totaled 815 votes; Bill Waller, 754; Maurice Dantin, 665; Charles Sullivan, 459; Bob Robinson, 48; and Richard "Sonny" Tedford, 24.

In the Republican race for senate, Charles Pickering edged out the Republican nominee Thad Cochran 256-245 in Hancock.

The count from Edwardsville Democratic box is missing from the total on all unofficial counts. The tally was locked in box by election managers.

In the Republican count, East Diamondhead and also Edwardsville were missing from the totals.

Election Commissioners will open the boxes today and reveal the totals for those three boxes.

C. Randall Jones of Pass Christian was the leader for Chancery Judge, Place One, in Hancock County, by a margin of 1,497 to 1,177 over William Stewart.

Stewart was the winner in the tri-county vote 13,622 to 8,957.

Board seeks remedy for dangerous glass

By EDGAR PEREZ
The Hancock County School Board this week authorized Superintendent Terry Randolph to develop cost estimates on replacing plate glass in school doors with plexiglass.

The action came on the heels of the second serious accident in county schools involving students falling into and breaking plate glass in doors.

Details of the most recent incident on March 28 at Charles B. Murphy Elementary School are spelled out in an open letter to Randolph and board members from parents of the injured child. The letter is published on the Editorial Page of today's Echo.

Hancock County School Nurse Evelyn Jacob is credited with saving the life of the injured Murphy student, according to school officials and the student's parents, James E. and Brenda W.

Anderson.

Randolph said the school district does not carry liability insurance to cover accidents on school grounds.

He noted prohibitive costs of liability insurance have forced the district to rely on the state for coverage on its vehicles, much less be able to cover student injuries.

"A considerable amount of glass" in the schools will have to be replaced, the superintendent pointed out, "and plexiglass is very expensive."

"But this kind of expense can be justified if it means saving the life of a student in the future," Randolph added.

The superintendent added he hopes to remedy the dangerous situation existing in the schools due to the earlier installation of plate glass prior to the opening of school in August if cost of the project is acceptable to the board.

their services as of this date, with the exception of continuing the field inspection services on projects currently under construction. The Council requests that Burk and Associates resubmit a statement for all professional fees owed by the City of Bay St. Louis to date, with the information presented in such a way that each project can be seen separately with complete information on each of the following:

1. Resume of project.
2. Date and method of original authorization for professional services.
3. Cost of construction.
4. Basis of fees and total fees for that project.
5. Anticipated source of construction funds and professional fees funds.
6. Payments on account of that project to date - by vote.

The Council requested that Burk and Associates turn over to the City of Bay St. Louis all prints, specifications, drawings, and pertinent data or copies of such information which is of use to the City of Bay St. Louis.

In checking the Docket, Council held up on two requests for payment by Burk and Associates in addition to four others. The other four items were to be checked by the City clerk to see if they were possibly duplicate bills before payment.

It is rumored that a special meeting between the Bay Council and Burk and Associates has been scheduled, to discuss fees.

In other actions, the Council accepted recommendations of the zoning and planning commission. The zoning and planning commission held a special meeting on May 25 to discuss a zoning change on Dunbar Avenue property near Hancock General Hospital.

The Zoning and Planning recommended a rezoning of Lots 25, 26 and 27, Block four, Highland Subdivision from R-1 to C-1. The request was made by John D. Rutherford Jr.

Joseph Triche, president of the Zoning and Planning Commission also asked Council for a date for the special meeting requested by the commission several months ago. Triche was told the council will hold a special meeting on June 22 with the Commission.

Mrs. Eve McDonald appeared before Council on behalf of the Senior Citizens programs in Bay St. Louis.

Mrs. McDonald presented Council with a breakdown of the Aging Programs sponsored by Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District giving the amount of monies to be spent and the activities for the coming fiscal year. The programs are funded on approximately 75 percent government and 25 percent local.

The Bay was asked to provide space in the Valena C. Jones complex and utilities and a janitor which is supplied by CETA.

Mrs. McDonald, who has been director of the Senior Citizens Programs since their infancy, 1972, in Hancock County, said there are government funds available for the projects but very much competition as many new areas are applying for the funds.

Mrs. McDonald stated, "I don't think any of the Title XX programs in Hancock County are in jeopardy because of the approval by the cities of Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County and most important, acceptance by the public. We have people coming in and saying tomorrow I will be 60, can I join in on the fun?"

Mrs. Theresa D. James, director of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, now also in its sixth year requested the same assistance from the Bay as in previous years - two rooms in the Valena C. Jones complex and $100 a month. Council was also unanimous in granting this request.

A resident on Webster Street, whose property adjoins Divine Word Seminary appeared with a petition from area residents requesting the Council have the Seminary clean the property they own adjacent to their properties.

Council asked Mayor Larry Bennett and council president James Thriffley to meet with rector and see if

Dispute continues tonight

Caddy waters muddy as protestors fish for port director's resignation

By RICHARD ADAMS
Temper flared Monday night at a special meeting of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission as a group of irate fishermen presented grievances and protested the lease between the Commission and Neils Nelson on the Bayou Cadet Marina.

Season opens Monday

Hancock fishermen miffed at restrictions

by SHARON WALLS

Hancock County fishermen, objecting to a Mississippi Marine Conservation Commission decision to close bays and bayous from Bayou Caddy west to Pearl River, are petitioning the MMCC to change the regulation before shrimp season opens Monday.

The ruling closes Heron Bay to shrimping, although shrimping is allowed to the shoreline along that coast. Commission attorney Lucien Gex commented that the ruling was suggested by the Commission chairman on technical grounds.

Dr. Richard Leard was out of town at a business meeting and was unavailable for comment Wednesday. Fishermen in the area are complaining the new restrictions force them into the Intercoastal Waterway to take bait shrimp and small amounts of shrimp for personal consumption.

Shrimpers seeking bait and quantities for personal consumption traditionally fish with small trawls operated by hand.

They will be forced to fish in the deep waters of the Intercoastal with the attendant dangers posed by passage of large ships and barge strings, the fishermen complained.

The Mississippi shrimp season will open Monday if samples taken Wednesday indicate the shrimp have reached the size required by state law, the Mississippi Marine Conservation Commission reported.

If the shrimp have not reached a size of 68 to the pound as outlined by Mississippi code, the Commission will hold a special meeting tomorrow to set

The meeting was called after Neilsen had two fishermen, Harold Strong, Jr. and Billy Burdick, arrested for allegedly trespassing on the marina's private property.

The meeting developed into a free-for-all of accusations and name calling, and at one point the fishermen shared agreement in asking for the resignation of W. A. Webre, executive director of the Port and Harbor Commission.

After three hours of hearing complaints, demands and accusations, the commission called for an executive session on a motion by John S. Boudages, seconded by David N. McDonald.

The session was called on Monday because four Board of Supervisor members were present who might not be at the regular meeting slated for tonight.

The meeting was not official, according to attorney Gerald Gex, because it was held on a state holiday.

"We had a hard situation before, and we made do," said Tommy Holzhauser, president of the Hancock County Fisherman Association. "We have a hard situation now and we can't make do. We cannot live under his (Neilsen's) rules and regulations. We cannot go by the way he runs this marina.

Holzhauser said a $200-a-month fee is a ridiculous charge to merely dock a boat in the marina.

He accused Neilsen of profiteering at the expense of the fishermen, buying and selling shrimp without a license and rewording the contract to his advantage.

"Any contract can be made to look beautiful for your own benefit," he said. Neilsen, reading contents of the lease to the board, denied the accusations or any wrongdoings on his part.

He said he had tried to work out an agreement with the fishermen where they could tie three boats together in the slips at a cost of about forty cents a day per man.

He attempted to justify his reasons for arresting the two fishermen, and said, "I'm not going to run this place for

Farmer needs no license

Hancock County Tax Collector Assessor Edward (Eddie) Murtagh said Wednesday Farmers Market here do not need the $25 license called for under Senate Bill 3023 which took effect June 1.

"As I interpret the law, a farmer or member of his immediate family growing his own produce and selling it is not required to purchase a vendors license," Murtagh said.

"If a person grows his own produce and sells it to the public he is also exempted from paying tax on sales; however, if a person purchases from another and resells the produce, he is required to pay sales tax," Murtagh explained.

Wayne Ducomb, Jr., vice president of public relations and sales for Mississippi Monitor Publications in Bay St. Louis, has been chosen campaign chairman for the United Way of Hancock County.

He was chosen for the post by United Way's board of directors and will be responsible for planning and directing the 1978 campaign scheduled for September and October.

Ducomb, 25, is a native of Hancock County and graduated from St. Stanislaus High School. Following graduation he attended the University of New Orleans.

He then served in the U.S. Army for two years as a battalion information specialist, performing various public relations functions for the 1st Battalion, 73rd Field Artillery at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

In addition to these duties, he was assistant editor of the "Cadet," a newspaper for ROTC summer camp at Ft. Bragg.

He graduated from the U.S. Army Training Center with a degree in offset printing.

Ducomb earned a BS degree from the University of Southern Mississippi, majoring in public relations and minoring in marketing.

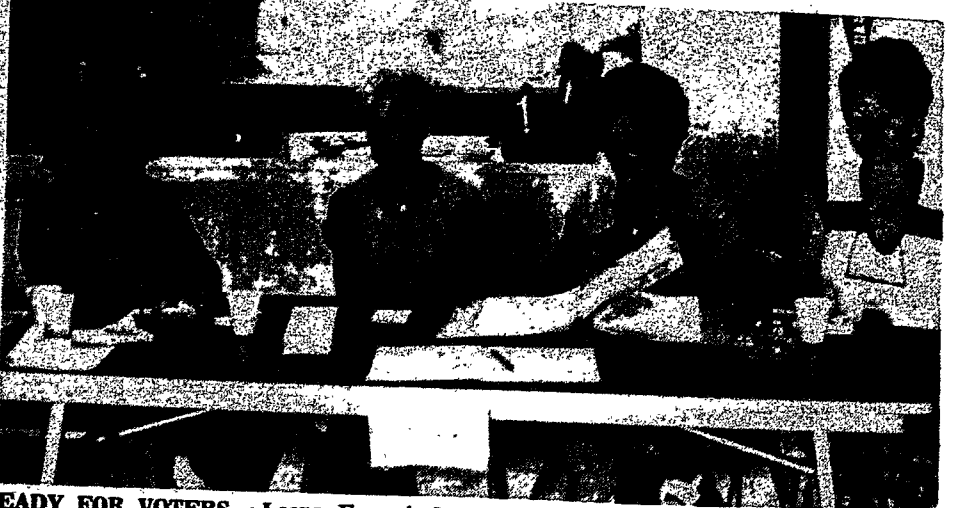

At USM he was a dean's list student, director of public relations for the Associated Student Body, member of Phi Eta Sigma honor fraternity, member of the publications board for Sigma Delta Chi (The Society of Professional Journalists) and manager of a Hattiesburg apartment complex.

Currently, he is state director of the Bay St. Louis Jaycees, member of Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, member of Sigma Delta Chi, member of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Advertising Club and sergeant in the Rebel Brigade of the Mississippi Jaycees.

State has high hopes for NCAA meet

The Mississippi State outdoor track team has qualified the most athletes in the schools history for the NCAA Outdoor Championships June 7-10 at Eugene, Ore.

State, which claims a former national champion in 400 meter ace Evis Jennings of Meridian and 1977 NCAA runnerup Dennis Otono in the 400 meter intermediates, seeks to better its finish of 20th in last year's competition.

Among the MSU qualifiers for the finals, which are being hosted by the University of Oregon, are 100-meter dash performer Moses Adabanji, Jennings in both the 200 and 400 meter races, Otono in the 400 meter hurdles, John Stubbs in the 1,500 meter run, and Lee Palles in the decathlon.

Adabanji, a sophomore, from Warri, Nigeria, was slowed by injuries late in the season and his status is still in doubt.

Jennings, making his first trip to Eugene since the 1976 U.S. Olympic Trials where he was edged in the finals of the 400-meter dash, will be trying to break the 45-second record in the 400 or the 20.8-second mark in the 200. He may also anchor the State 1,600 meter relay team.

Otono missed the national championship last year in the 400-hurdles by .14 second as Southern Cal's Rob Andrews outran him before a national audience on the ABC "Wide World of Sports."

Palles, fresh from a record-setting 7,540 markers to win the SEC decathlon title, set a national record in the event

Emergency care workshop at USM

The University of Southern Mississippi will be offering a workshop in advanced emergency health care from June 19-30 on the USM campus.

The workshop is designed to prepare an individual in the psychological aspects of injuries or sudden illnesses and the care in such situations.

The information covered should benefit anyone with proper skills and information to be of help if needed by someone else, or should such a need present itself for the individual.

The class will meet from 1-5 p.m. for the weeks scheduled. The course will cover cardiopulmonary resuscitation, basic life support, advanced first aid and emergency care first aid plus qualifying for instructor's in standard first aid and personal safety.

Many states and school systems require personnel to be qualified to teach these courses.

Miss Marianne Brown will serve as the director of the workshop. Registration will be held on June 19 at 8 a.m. in McLenore Hall in Room 352.

Additional information is available by contacting Department of Conferences and Workshops, Southern Station Box 56, Hattiesburg, MS 39401.

Ski restrictions partially lifted

The Mississippi Park Commission has modified skiing restrictions at Paul B. Johnson State Park in Hattiesburg to allow skiers to use the park lake on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

Park Commission Director Tom Edwards said the change in restrictions is based on a recent inspection of the park's dam by Park Commission personnel.

Restrictions set earlier this year permitted skiing on the lake only on Saturdays and Sundays. Edwards said Park Commission personnel will observe the dam during the next 30 days to determine if the extra skiing is causing additional erosion.

If no appreciable damage occurs during this period, he said, the commission may add more ski days in July.

Skiers are allowed to use the lake between the hours of 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. on the appointed days, Edwards said, adding the 85 horsepower boat motor limitation remains firm.

School and health officials urge compliance with immunization law

Officials of the Mississippi Board of Health, State Department of Education and the superintendents of Hancock County, Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian Municipal School Districts are urging parental compliance with provisions of a new state law on student immunizations.

A new mandatory immunization law passed by the 1978 session of the Mississippi legislature and signed into law by the governor makes school personnel responsible for the immunizations of children against communicable childhood diseases—diphtheria, pertussis or whooping cough, tetanus, measles or red measles, rubella or German measles, and polio.

Senate Bill No. 2650 declares that "it shall be unlawful for any child to attend any school, kindergarten or similar type facility intended for the instruction of children, either public or private, unless they have been first vaccinated against those diseases specified by the state health officer."

The Bill, applicable to children in grades one through eight in school year 1978-79, states that the person in charge of the educational facility has to enforce the immunization requirements: four doses of diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis vaccine (this is the so-called "dpt" immunization); three doses of the oral polio vaccine; one dose of red measles vaccine; and one dose of rubella (german measles) vaccine.

According to Barry Trostel, immunization supervisor for the Board of Health Bureau of Disease Control, "Each student will be required to present an immunization certificate—officially called a 'certificate of compliance'—certifying that the student has had the required immunizations before admission to school."

This certificate can be obtained from any local health department or private physician.

The forms are available to private physicians from the health department. Trostel emphasizes that no child will be admitted to school without one of the immunization certificates. The only kinds of exceptions will be religious and medical exemptions.

A religious exemption would state that the child's religion forbids his or her receiving immunizations and must be signed by an officer of the church of which the child is a member.

A medical exemption would state that because of medical risks, the child should not be immunized. It must be signed by a physician.

The law provides that any child who enrolls in the school without having completed the required vaccinations may be granted an extension up to 90 days if the health officer decides "such delay will not cause undue risk to the child, the school or community."

However, the law states that no child will be allowed to attend school without having had at least one dose of each vaccine.

Any child not in compliance at the end of 90 days from the opening of the fall term must be suspended from school until the student completes the vaccination series, unless some other factors are responsible for non-compliance—such as lack of supply of vaccine.

Within 30 days of the opening of school for the fall term, the person in charge of the school has to report to the county or local health officer the number of children enrolled in school, giving the number vaccinated, the number completing the vaccination requirements, and the number exempt from vaccinations for medical or religious reasons.

Within 120 days, the school official must certify to the local health officer that all the children enrolled are in compliance with the requirements.

Failure to enforce any provisions of this act shall constitute a misdemeanor and upon conviction be punishable by fine or imprisonment of both.

Trostel cites as the reason the new law was needed is fact that "parents have become lax about immunizations and no longer think they are important for their children."

"We were getting into a situation which might have resulted in an outbreak of one of the diseases, but this law should help correct that situation," the health official added.

The law provides that grades 9-10 will be covered in school year 1979-80, and all 12 grades will be covered in 1980-81.

"These vaccinations may be obtained at the Hancock County Health Department or at the office of a family physician," Superintendent Terry Randolph of Hancock County Schools said.

In all cases, only certificates of vaccinations issued on forms specified by the Mississippi State Board of Health will be accepted by school officials for showing compliance with the immunization requirements, he added.

Parents whose children have been previously vaccinated at the County Health Department or at a physician's office must obtain a certificate of vaccination for their children and present it at the time of enrollment for the 1978-79 school year, Randolph pointed out.

He said certificates of vaccination may be turned in at the office of the principal of the school in which a child will be enrolled during the 1978-79 school year—Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., August 1-17.

According to the three superintendents, if a child attempts to enroll at a school without having completed the required vaccinations, the local health officials not school officials—may grant a period of time up to (90) days for such completion, if, in the opinion of the health officials, such delay will not cause undue risks to the child, the school or the community.

Under no conditions, they emphasized, shall a child be enrolled without having first had at least one dose of each specified vaccine.

Any child not in compliance at the end of 90 days from the beginning of the fall term of school must be suspended until he is in compliance, unless the health officials shall attribute the delay to lack of supply of vaccine or some other factor making compliance impossible, the superintendents explained.

A certificate of exemption from vaccination for medical reasons may be offered on behalf of a child by a duly licensed physician and may be accepted by the local health officer, when, in his opinion, such exemption will not cause undue risk to the community.

A certificate of religious exemption may be offered on behalf of a child by an officer of a church or a recognized denomination. This certificate must certify that parents or guardians of the child are bona fide members of a recognized denomination whose religious teaching require reliance on prayer or spiritual means of healing, the school officials said.

Superintendent Leroy Lizana noted parents in his district may obtain immunization certificates from the Harrison County Health Department or a private physician.

Lizana said the certificates may also be turned in to the principal of the school to be attended in the Pass Christian District between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m., August 1-17.

Opinions- Ellis Cuevas

The hottest issue in town

The most talked about issue in town this week has to be the arrest of two local fishermen at Hancock County's Bayou Caddy Marina for trespassing.

Fishermen had their say Monday night with an unofficial meeting with the Port and Harbor Commission and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors. The reason the meeting was unofficial was because it was Jeff Davis' Birthday, a legal state holiday.

There seem to be many misunderstandings by parties on all sides, and we say all sides, as it seems to be about four or five sides involved in the controversy.

Fishing has been a large industry in Hancock County for numerous years. Many of the commercial fishermen out of Bayou Caddy are third, fourth and fifth generations of the same families.

A fisherman can be compared to a farmer, like a farmer plants his seeds and may be successful, a fishermen cast his nets in the seas and doesn't know if he will be successful until he hauls them in with the catch. A fishermen can have a bumper harvest just like a farmer and not realize a profit because of low prices.

Not long ago, the fishermen used boats 25 or 35 feet long with four cylinder Model "A" Ford engines, the farmers used an old horse or mule.

Today fishermen locally use boats 70 feet and above, the farmers use air conditioned tractors that do just about everything.

No business in this country, we feel is given more of a subsidy than the farmers, and we are not saying they don't need help because we feel they need and deserve it.

But, like the farmer, the fishermen plays a very important role in Hancock County's economy. There has been some help to the fishermen in recent years, but we feel more help is needed.

Through the efforts of the Hancock County Farm Bureau, Extension Service and Chamber of Commerce and, yes, our elected officials, a Farmers Market was established last year and is again in operation. This was and is a big help to our local farmers.

Now we look at our fishermen, we realize efforts are underway for the building of a large marina at Bayou Caddy but that is a year or so away, and fishermen just like anyone else have to eat today, tomorrow etc., they can't wait until next year.

The facilities at Bayou Caddy are inadequate - fishermen, politicians and everyone else agree, but the fishermen have to have some place to dock and also some place to unload their catches and a means of selling their fruits of the sea.

We feel the County or some governmental agency should do all in their power to help these fishermen solve these problems. We realize some of the problems are caused by the fishermen, because there are two sides to every story.

But like the farmer, we feel the fishermen should be helped, and real soon.

When you visit your fish market, you will find seafood in season a lot cheaper as a housewife than you will find beef or pork.

The statement we will remember for a long time from Monday's meeting was when Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner Jr. said, "It was the first time in my over 16 years as sheriff I apologized for making an arrest".

The other side

Hancock County Board of Supervisors have discussed the Marina for many hours at board meetings over the years.

A good statement was made by Supervisor president A. A. (Dolph) Kellar on Monday at the joint meeting with the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission and fishermen.

Kellar's statement that all residents are invited to Supervisors meetings was good, and more citizens should try and attend these meetings.

Kellar's comment to the fishermen that anything to do with the Marina at Bayou Caddy should be brought before the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, who is in charge of the facility was very wise.

The Marina at Bayou Caddy was leased to the person the Port and Harbor Commission recommended to the Board of Supervisors. Both bodies felt this person would do the best job for the commercial as well as sport fishermen.

We know from previous Supervisor meetings complaints were made against the former Marina lessee.

There seems to be some misunderstanding on all sides, the new person to lease the facilities (not there two weeks yet), the fishermen and everyone else involved.

We do have to feel that the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors are trying their best to please everyone in this disagreement.

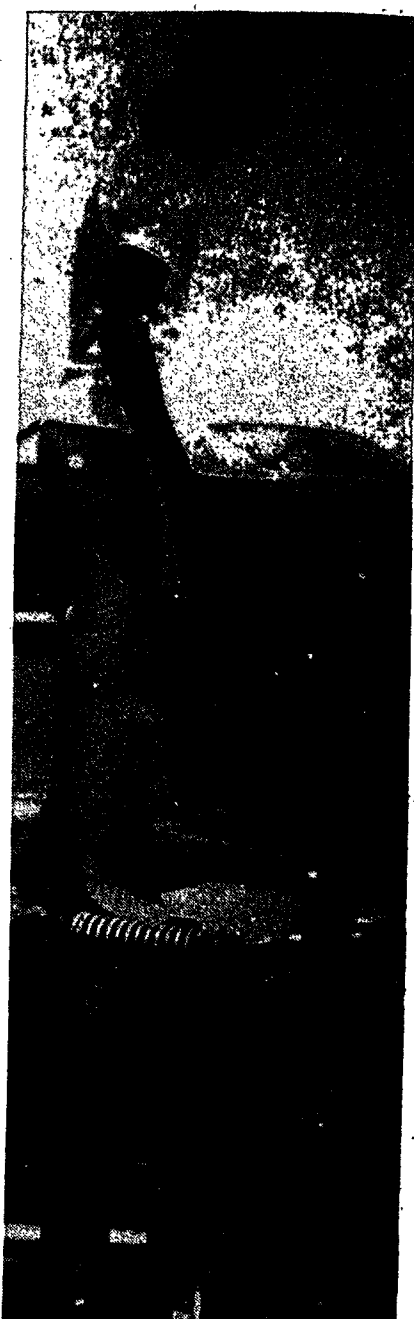

To solve the problem is going to take the meeting of many minds, all determined to settle the issue, once and for all.

Letters to the Editor

Heroism and a dangerous situation

An open letter to: Terry H. Randolph, Superintendent Hancock County School District 119 Main Street Bay St. Louis, Miss.

Dear Sir:

On March 28th, our son, Michael Shane, an eighth grade student at Charles B. Murphy Elementary was involved in an accident which almost cost his life.

Had it not been for the quick action of the school nurse, Mrs. Evelyn Jacob and the driving ability of Coach Roland Summers, our son would be dead.

Nurse Jacob is credited with saving his life, and Dr. Jan McClanahan is credited with saving his arm from amputation.

As you know, Shane went through a quarter-inch thick plate glass window, installed in an exit door at his school, and his right arm was nearly severed.

We will not go into detail about the accident, but some of the teachers and students who witnessed it, had to be sent home.

Some of them were sick for days after, and some still refuse to eat certain foods, because it reminds them of what they saw.

Besides the damage to his right arm, he also received lacerations in his left arm and a deep cut in the right eye brow. A classroom, approximately five feet behind him when the accident occurred, also received a deep cut above the eye.

Both boys were rushed to Sldell, where they received emergency attention. Shane was transferred to Methodist Hospital in New Orleans, where he underwent seven hours of surgery for an artery transplant, and to repair the severed veins, nerves, tendon and muscle.

The extent of damage to his right arm will not be known for at least a year to year and a half. Indeed, the full extent of damage may not be known for a number of years, for there is a possibility that the artery transplant could cause trouble.

This would occur at about age 40 when he will have the responsibility of a family. He already faces the prospect of muscle transplants and the re-routing of nerves.

There seems to be a total lack of concern, for the safety of our children, by the Hancock County School Board. If this were not so, why wasn't the glass replaced in 1975, when the first accident occurred? The girl's parents were told that all of it would be, after she was accidentally pushed backwards thru a large plate glass side panel, at the front entrance.

Her parents also had to pay all of the medical expenses, even though she was insured by the "special" school insurance.

It seems that the insurance company felt that the school was responsible for having the plate glass installed instead of safety glass.

Must we wait for a death to occur before the board takes action to remove this potential killer?

Our sons life was spared...will the next child be that lucky.

We are requesting that you replace all of the glass which involves entrances and exits to the buildings, and the inside offices and classrooms.

This change should take place in every school in your district, before the next semester begins.

The cost of this undertaking, cannot possibly compare to the loss of a child. We are aware, that the children are asked to refrain from running in the hallways.

This does not alter the fact that they are children, and we as parents and you as our elected officials are responsible for the safety and protection of our children.

Sincerely, James E. Anderson Brenda W. Anderson

Leard said, adding that the letter arrived too late for Monday's discussion.

The Association, in a letter dated May 30, asked the restrictions passed last month limiting sport fishermen to a total of 50 speckled trout and redfish of one day's fishing should also apply to captains of menhaden boats.

The sportsmen also requested that menhaden vessels and sport fishermen be included under a section of the ordinance that sets minimum lengths for redfish, speckled trout and mullet for commercial fishermen.

The People's Business

KEEPING UP WITH THE LAW

Back in 1959, says the Guinness Book of World Records, there were 1,156,644 federal and state statutes on the nation's law books.

Little wonder the public is sometimes confused. It's unknown at this point as to the number of laws on the Mississippi books.

But it is known that with each annual session of the Mississippi Legislature, some 2,500 bills and resolutions are introduced - that's 2,500 bills and resolutions for consideration in the 90 days of a session.

Lawmakers, it seems, have two responsibilities to their publics. One is to enact laws which serve the state and its citizens. The other is to reject proposed laws which do little if any good for anybody, or which would adversely affect the state or its citizens.

A continuing objective of lawmakers - whether at the federal, state, or local level - should be to keep statutes clear, concise, easy to understand; and to keep the statute books 'as brief as possible.

the commercial fisherman. I'm not going to run it for the benefit of the sport fisherman. I'm there to run it as a marina. And it's costing me money."

Webre, the subject of many accusations, explained that the Bayou Cadet Marina is "free in all respects" to the county.

"There has been a great deal of misunderstanding about the context of the agreement itself and the rights of the fishermen and the public at the Bay Cadet Marina," he said.

He then elaborated upon the agreement, which allows boats to load and unload free at the public spots, but not to berth or homestead.

There is a shortage of berthing spaces, he conceded, and the plan to build a large anchorage may become a reality yet this year.

Webre believes the new anchorage will relieve 99 percent of the shortage problems at the marina.

A number of fishermen complained that Neilson was not abiding by the lease since he supplies no ice, diesel fuel, water, or lights.

A complaint that $2 parking fee was charged at the free landing area was discussed. John Bordages stated that a parking fee may be levied only if there is an attendant present to direct the cars to spaces.

A complaint was also voiced that Neilson planned to install a locked gate to keep people off the marina after the proposed ten o'clock closing time. A $10 charge for a key is planned by Neilson.

Accusations were made that Neilson allegedly posted "no trespassing" signs on the dock without authority from the Port and Harbor Commission.

Billy Bernos, one of the men arrested for allegedly trespassing, said of the lack of services, "I don't want something for nothing. I want to pay for everything I get. If I am going to pay for a berthing, I want something, and I'm not going to pay to it until I get something."

He says the only solution to the problem is a re-negotiation of the contract.

Cathy Holzhauser, wife of the president of the Fishermen's Association, asked Webre if his primary interest was in the good of the county and accused him of "looking down his nose" at the fishermen.

"For the good of the county," she said, "We would like to see you resign."

Sheriff Ladner, apologizing to the two fishermen for having to arrest them, suggested that the county hire a man to maintain the marina to be paid by the county.

Bordages pointed out that at least three men would be required to cover all the shifts and the result would be a high cost to the taxpayers.

"There is no reason for me to go down there and arrest a bunch of people," Neilson stated. "I'm going to settle in court. If the judge says I'm illegal, I want no more to do with the marina. If the judge says I'm legal," he concluded, "Then we'll run it as a marina."

Tommy Holzhauser summed the fishermen stance when he said he'll stay at the marina, tied up to the slips, until his needs are met.

Dying was simple. natural event in earlier time

In the good old days back in the early 1900's the ways of departing this life were few, and simple. Most people back then died natural deaths.

Now, you read and hear of people dying from a multitude of causes almost every day. In the thickly settled rural area where I grew up, I never knew or heard of unnatural deaths except in two instances: a great uncle was killed when he was thrown from a horse and I heard of a black man being drowned in Tallahala creek.

While I never knew of it happening in our immediate area there were occasionally reports of some man on the wrong side losing his life by being stabbed by a barlow knife on election day.

On other rare occasions, a man met his end at the end of a grass rope as the result of a legal execution or at times because of some heinous crime that excited mobs to quick action.

Now, departure from this life happens in many ways never heard of in the old days. Unless we are exceptionally lucky, we are run over by an automobile or shot into eternity by being struck by a motorcycle, a motor truck, a bicycle, a train or taxi-cab, or maybe one of these so called whoope-cats.

Also, we now read in the papers, or hear over the radio or TV every day of people being killed by robbers, thugs or by someone suffering from hallucinations.

Others are shot from ambush or killed by stray bullets and we meet with accidents of various kinds never heard of in 1900.

A new way of death is the falling of airplanes that wreck houses, killing their occupants, while others fall out of balloons, or off roof tops. Still others get stuck on live wires, or, on occasions, other men's wives.

A few of us still die from natural causes or we are operated on for something our grandparents never heard of.

Almost all people died in 1900 from natural causes. We had never heard of appendicitis but it was not unusual for someone to die of cramp colic, pneumonia, a summer spell of fever or consumption (now called tuberculosis).

Consumption caused many deaths - three of my first cousins died in early life of this dread disease.

We had never heard of viruses, germs, microbes, or allergies in 1900. If you got a pain in the middle of your body, the doctor, if you were fortunate enough to get one, would diagnose it as belly-ache and prescribe a simple remedy, most likely a powder which he would prepare on the dining room table and fold up in pieces of papers.

Where I lived there was no drug store to go to. If you had a headache, the doctor would fix up a simple remedy for you.

As I remember it, the biggest killer when I grew up next to pneumonia was what we called "slow fever," later call typhoid fever.

In the old days when a person got sick he did not have to hire a nurse as the neighbors came in and helped.

In fact there were no such persons as trained nurses. It was a general rule that one or two would "sit up" the first half of the night and others would come in for the last half when a neighbor was ill.

In the good old days doctors did not profess to know much and not being able to cover up their slips with pretence of great learning they were generally high class, conscientious men and were so careful that they made few mistakes.

I never knew one of the old time doctors to be in a big hurry. I remember my father had pneumonia when I was a small boy. The doctor stayed in our house for hours at a time when my father was real sick.

When a person died in 1900 in rural Mississippi, where I was born and grew up, friends and neighbors got together to dig the grave.

A neighbor with a good wagon volunteered to haul the body to the cemetery.

Back where I lived there were always much more volunteer help than was needed in time of trouble.

Men of the neighborhood saw to it that a good coffin was made, usually by a local carpenter.

The necessary materials for the coffin could usually be gotten at the nearby store. The total cost to the family losing one of its members was extremely low, only a few dollars, probably $10 to 15 in money.

When anyone in the general area died, there were always a good number of volunteers who would meet up at the cemetery to dig the grave. There was this one man near us who always helped and who was most welcome. He had the reputation of knowing how to dig a grave so that it would be done in the best way, with smooth sides and perfectly square corners.

All funerals I remember attending in my early years were graveside - I was grown before I ever attended a church funeral.

The body would be hauled to the cemetery followed by family and friends.

Others would meet at the cemetery at the time set for the funeral. There was a short ceremony before the body was laid to rest.

After the simple graveside ceremony was over with, the body would be lowered into the grave by a group of athletic volunteer hands. The dirt would be closely packed around, and over the grave with a crude name plate to serve until a better one could be provided.

When the head of a family died in our area and there was no one in the family to complete the cultivation of his crop, or to harvest his crop, the men of the area would get together and do the work necessary to complete the crops and harvesting.

I remember one time a man living near us had a field of cotton ready to pick. The family was all sick - probably with typhoid fever. Enough of the neighbors met at this farm one sunny day and picked several bales of cotton and put it in the sick man's cotton house.

This was done by neighbors without thought of pay.

Things were simpler back in the old days. We did not have back then the maze of complications that now beset us. Nothing is simple any more. Back in the old days we had no newspapers, no magazines, no radios, no TV to keep us informed of the complexities of life, and the perils that beset us, so that we were ignorant thereof and unafraid there at.

Average U.S. Home May Soon Cost $78,000

The average price of a typical American home could reach the almost incredible level of $78,000 within five years. This startling information was released in early March 1977 in a report by the Joint Center for Urban Studies of Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The price of housing in the past few years has jumped twice as fast as family incomes. Contributing to this rapid rise in the price have been inflation, government regulations, and periodic shortages of mortgage money - all of which has caused a sharp decline in housing starts since 1972.

YES WE CAN ...help you beat the high cost of building a new home.

Instructor Ronald Burks of the Hancock North Central High School drafting department this year charged his students with the task of translating the "house of their dreams" into workable drawings.

By the end of the term, the future architects, engineers and draftsmen in the class had completed the project and presented their work at a regular meeting of the Hancock County School Board.

Included among the senior members of the drafting section this year is Tammy Cuevas, HNC salutatorian who graduated with an overall average of 94.7.

Burks told school board members the academic level among drafting students remained high during the year.

Ms. Cuevas said she intends to enroll in Jeff Davis Junior College in Biloxi and possibly Tulane University in New Orleans later.

Others making presentations at the meeting include Kip Duplantis who will attend Memphis State College in September through a U.S. Marine Corps Reserve scholarship.

Sandra Ladner who plans to study architectural engineering and interior design at Delgado Junior College in New Orleans. Ms. Ladner is working this summer with a Gulfport drafting firm.

Robert Vicknair who also plans to attend Delgado in the fall.

Kayleen Ladner, also currently working for a Gulfport drafting firm.

Other seniors are Penny Williams and Sheri Lyons. Joe Auxilien will be a senior in the class in September.

MANAGEMENT WEEK - Gov. Cliff Finch, fourth from left, signs a proclamation recognizing the week of June 4-10 as National Management Association Week. Officers of the Global Associates Management Association at NASA-NSTL in Hancock County who presented the proclamation are left to right, C.M. (Buzzy) Grice of Poyune, publicity chairman; Billie Faye Miller of Poyune, secretary; Hal Bauersachs of Bay St. Louis, vice president; Finch; Robert Cagle of Bay St. Louis, president; and Herman Rivera of Gulfport, treasurer.

It is that time of the month again, time for all Seniors to participate in the June Social Hour, on Monday, June 12th at 1:30 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center, Bay St. Louis. There will be prizes galore, who knows, perhaps this could be your lucky day, and you will go home with a prize or two besides the special door prize.

The Social Hour is one of the many functions we have every month for all Seniors 60 years of age and older. If you have not signed for our recreation program, come on down to the Senior Center and someone will fill out a form for you. There is no charge for any of our recreation programs.

Our R.S.V.P. volunteers who bake delicious cakes every month, the servers, the telephone committee, and our co-ordinators deserve a lot of credit for their 100 percent participation in all our programs, and without their help we just couldn't function properly.

The participating merchants have been very generous with their contributions every month. Please patronize them.

Boating safety consciousness urged on Hancock's waterways

Hancock County boaters are being urged to maintain safe boating practices this summer by the U.S. Coast Guard and the insurance companies serving this area.

According to the U.S. Coast Guard, 33 persons were killed and another 20 injured on Mississippi waterways last year.

Since 1973, boating accidents have claimed 131 lives in Mississippi.

These figures only hint at the seriousness of the problem because only 10 percent of marine accidents involving injuries or property damage are reported, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The Insurance Information Institute, whose New Orleans office serves Hancock County, urges boat owners to review their insurance coverage as one preparation for the coming boating season.

A homeowners policy does not provide coverage for most boats; and in cases where the policy would apply, coverage is limited.

Boaters should also make sure their craft are seaworthy before putting them into the water.

The fuel, electrical and steering systems should be checked that all connections, fastenings, protective casings and other parts are not worn and are working properly.

The Coast Guard reports that in 1977 fire and explosions caused 581 boating accidents and killed 24 persons in the U.S.

Boats should not be loaded beyond their stated capacity, and all persons aboard should wear flotation devices. If the boat capsizes, stay with the boat.

Boat operators should also develop good seeing habits. Coast Guard statistics show that the majority of boating accidents involve collision with boats or other objects. Improper lookout or operator carelessness (1,684) caused more collisions than poor visibility (989).

Operators should remember that boats neither maneuver nor stop like cars, nor are highway traffic signs found on waterways.

Operators are encouraged to take a Coast Guard, a Red Cross or a similar boating safety course. The Coast Guard also offers a Courtesy Marine Examination to check safety criteria of boats.

A home study program on boating safety, "The Skipper's Course," is available from the superintendent of documents for a $1.50 (order number 050-012-00050-06; Superintendent of Documents; U.S. Government Printing Office; Washington, D.C. 20401).

Further information locally on boating safety can be obtained by calling the nearest Coast Guard Auxiliary or Red Cross Chapter.

ADVERTISMENT Employers Back Reservists

How do most bosses feel about moonlighting? Apparently okay when their employees' part-time jobs are in the Army Reserve.

To date, over 336,000 employers, representing about 60 per cent of the entire U.S. work force (more than 52 million individuals), have pledged to do more than the law requires to accommodate the military commitments of Reservists.

Much of the credit for increased employer cooperation goes to the six-year-old National Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve (NCESGR), which has the endorsement of President Carter.

Among the chief objectives of the NCESGR are to increase the awareness of employers of the importance of the Reserve to our nation's security and well-being and to show employers how they and their businesses may benefit from having employees participate in these military activities.

Employers are awakening to the fact that their service-trained employees have a sense of responsibility demonstrated on the job and during their 16 hours a month and two weeks Annual Training as citizen-soldiers in the Army Reserve. In many cases, Reservists have been highly trained by the service in fields in which they are now employed as civilians. For example, there are over 160 job skills in the Reserve that have counterparts in the civilian job world.

The law states that an employer must give a Reservist time off, necessary to attend monthly training assemblies and two weeks Annual Training. Furthermore, an employer cannot deduct those two weeks from any vacation time to which a Reservist may be entitled. Thanks to the NCESGR, however, many employers continue to pay their Reserve employees during their Annual Training.

Last September, President Carter issued a statement calling upon employers throughout the nation, both public and private, to join in continued support of the programs of the Reserve Components, which are so necessary to our national defense.

Buccaneer

Crew Notes

By SHERRY PRICE

Summer programming is underway at Buccaneer State Park. Schools are out and campers have arrived, taking advantage of facilities and activities which are designed to enhance their leisure time.

GIRL SCOUTS

Seventy-seven Girl Scouts, all members of the Bay St. Louis Neighborhood, Gulf Pines Council, held their annual Day Camp at Buccaneer State Park.

Accompanying the Girl Scouts were 15 adult leaders under the direction of Mrs. Alice Holmes. All received Junior Ranger certification and participated in arts and crafts, singing, outdoor programs and swimming.

While attending the day camp, Cadettes and Junior Girl Scouts earned the following badges: gypsy, cyclist, water fun, world games and backyard fun.

The older scouts worked on their campercraft, hiker, games leader, plant kingdom and sports merits.

The camp opened and closed with the traditional flag ceremony, highlighting the day camp was a Friday night awards ceremony, bonfire on the beach and an overnight camp out. The girls were visited by Camp Committee in council members Mrs. Kitty Reid and Mrs. Bea Carroll of Hattiesburg. These ladies checked the health and safety of the day camp, set up according to Girl Scout standards.

Mrs. Ethel Schott, a Neighborhood Chairman of the Bay St. Louis Girl Scouts also made a visit.

FULL WEEKEND
Friday's story time was attended by 22 Brownies, members of the Gulf Pines Council-Waveland-Bay St. Louis. Saturday's scavenger hunt was delayed somewhat by a downpour, but Michael Ferrier, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ferrier, Chalmette, La. was winner, finding 14 out of the 20 listed items.

In the adult shuffleboard contest, Bob Ledet, and Ernie Serpas from New Orleans and Morero respectively, blew away Jane Dennis and Marilyn Serpas in final play 66 to 3 to take top honors.

Saturday night's activity, grocery bingo, drew a slight crowd. In this form of bingo, campers exchange one food item for a card, and play to win meals for prizes.

It is a really great way to meet other campers and spend a relaxing evening in the Recreation Hall. Hopefully we can get this program off the ground and make it a regular activity!

Reverend Nathan Barber, pastor at Bay St. Louis First Baptist Church conducted Sunday services for campers. Four youths, accompanied by Rev. Barber and led scripture songs for the congregation.

Robert Loomas, 16, of Harahan, La., took top honors in the Teens' Ping Pong Tournament held Sunday afternoon. The Sunday evening volleyball game was attended by campers and the enthusiastic "locals" from Bay St. Louis-Waveland.
